

Atlanta,
16th to 19th of March 2016

Sustainable-engendered peace in the Anthropocene

Úrsula Oswald Spring
National Autonomous
University of Mexico
(CRIM-UNAM)

Content

- 1. Research question
- 2. What means sustainable-engendered peace
- 3. Patriarchy as a key obstacle for sustainability on Planet Earth in the Anthropocene
- 4. Adaptation of Patriarchy from decentralized village structures, to king-god cities, monarchies, feudalism, capitalism, and neoliberalism
- 5. Systemic obstacles for a sustainable-engendered peace and alternatives of peace efforts
  - 1. Negative peace
  - 2. Structural peace
  - 3. Culture of peace
  - 4. Sustainable peace
  - 5. Engendered peace
- 6. Human, gender and environmental (HUGE) security and peace to overcome social inequality, dual vulnerability and catastrophic outcomes of global environmental changes
- 7. Conclusions

1. Research Question

How could a sustainable-engendered peace be enhanced to reduce the threats of social inequality, dual vulnerability, destruction of biodiversity and ecosystem services with catastrophic outcomes for humans and environment in the Anthropocene?

2. What means sustainable –engenderd peace

- The concept of a ‘sustainable-engendered peace’ refers to the structural factors related to long-term violence, deeply embedded in the patriarchal system and characterized by authoritarianism, exclusion, discrimination, exploitation and violence. This dominant social structure affects values such as equity, equality and justice, and often even threatens the survival of individuals and social groups. This dominant system has also concentrated the wealth of earth within a small group of oligarchs who manage multinational enterprises and controls governments to grant their interests.
- The sources of threats have been consolidated over thousands of years by patriarchal institutions, religious controls, self-identified beliefs and social representations, and totalitarian exercise of power. They have also affected natural resources, climate and ecosystem services. The concept of a sustainable-engendered peace attempts to reach an understanding of the deeply anchored links to patriarchy and its war system (Reardon 1980) that are related to the physical, social and cultural threats of the dominant values and behavior in the Anthropocene.
- The sources of threats have been consolidated over thousands of years by patriarchal institutions (Folbre 2006), religious controls (Jasper 2013), and the totalitarian exercise of power (Held 2004).

3. Patriarchy as key obstacle for sustainability on planet Earth in the Anthropocene

MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO

Anthropocene

- Paul Crutzen (2002) proposed the idea of the Anthropocene. This concept relates to the environmental changes produced, predominantly by human intervention and corporate enterprises, in the earth system since the industrial revolution, but especially during the last five decades, because of the intensive use of fossil energy, the rapid increase in greenhouse gas emissions into the atmosphere, the pollution and warming of the seas, and an accelerated process of urbanization. The Anthropocene is a new geological epoch that is changing the earth history of the Holocene.
- This concept is useful for understanding the transformative negative effects of human activity on the planetary ecology, but human agency also has a positive potential for change. It is precisely the dominant patriarchal global order that is limiting human choice and agency.

4. Adaptation of patriarchy to decentralized village structures, king-god cities, monarchies, feudalism, capitalism, and neoliberalism

- During thousands of years of evolution, patriarchy adapted to regional and social differences, even though its basic roots was and is violence, discrimination, domination, exploitation, and oppression in household and society, in short, a system of waging war in order to maintain the dominant power relationships.
- Its vertical structure integrated cultural and ritual elements into its system of rule in Mesopotamia, China, Meso-America, the Roman Empire, and later in the European conquest of America, Asia, and Africa.
- Neoliberalism replaced the traditional legal forms of social coexistence and imposed worldwide a single system of rule controlled by Bretton Wood: the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the World Trade Organization and the Consensus of Washington.

5. Systemic obstacles for a sustainable-engendered peace

5.1. Negative peace:

Absence of physical or personal violence, negotiation of a cease-fire or agreements for ending a war and violent confrontation, indifferent realtions, repression

5.2 Structural peace:

Absence of injustice, inequality and inequity, economic exploitation, discrimination, intra-country and inter-country class and gender relations

5.3 Culture of peace

- Includes a diverse set of values, traditions, behaviors, attitudes and ways of life with respect for life on earth and for human beings (UNESCO 2002).
- Conflicts between human beings, communities and states should be managed through conflict resolution, where discriminative social representations and violence are ended through negotiation that can lead to win-win conditions for all those involved. In this positive sense, a 'culture of peace' should promote peacebuilding education (Reardon/Snauwaert 2015a, 2015b) in order to deepen the dialogue and increase cooperation between races, genders and ages.
- The existence of two concepts, peace and culture, has also created tensions. Groff and Smoker (1995) insisted that the wider understanding of culture must include symbols, rituals, heroes and values, but the crucial issue of an integrated culture of peace is related to shared values, including relationships with others, with nature, and with God.
- A culture of peace has a visible and a hidden dimension of culture, both of which influence the peacebuilding process.

5.4 Sustainable peace

- Our ecological footprint in 2014 was equivalent to the depletion of 1.5 planets (WWF 2014), even though we have only one that has favorable conditions for human life. In the distant past, fossil records show that for every thousand mammals, only one became extinct. The current extinction rate is a thousand times greater than the fossil record, and the future is expected to be ten times more destructive still than the present (MA 2005). During the last six decades of the Anthropocene in hand of multinational enterprises, 9 million km<sup>2</sup> of soil (an area roughly the size of China) were moderately degraded and three million km<sup>2</sup> were severely degraded, losing their original biological function.
- Sustainable peace entails zero tolerance of ecosystem service destruction, and reduction of carbon, water, soil, food, urban and rural foot-print in households and in communities, within countries and across States.

Ecosystem services in danger

Source: MA (2005)

5.5 Engendered peace

Source: Derived from World Bank (2003).

- The values at risk are established gender relations (Lagarde 1990; Lamas 1996), deeply rooted in the dominant social representations of gender (Jodelet 1991; Serrano 2010), which are manipulated by an oligarchy (Stiglitz 2010; Yiamouyiannis 2013) and reinforced by religious fundamentalism, hierarchical churches (Gutiérrez 2013), and schools (Gramsci 1975, 1998). This social structure affects values such as equity, equality, solidarity, justice (Truong et al. 2014), cultural identity (Serrano 2014), and often even the survival of individuals and social groups (Oswald 1994).
- The sources of threats have been consolidated over thousands of years by patriarchal institutions (Folbre 2006), religious controls (Jasper 2013), and the totalitarian exercise of power (Held 2004).
- Patriarchy must be understood historically as being imposed on women through violence (via conquest, spoliation, rape, and feminicide), discrimination (by laws and rules), subordination (through economic and sexual control), hierarchy (by the notion of paterfamilias, today represented by the global oligarchy), inequality (in education, income, leisure and political power), through exclusion (patrilineal and patrilocal inheritance and exclusive globalization), and through social classes and social representations (constructed self-discipline and internalization of gender roles).

FROM VIOLENCE TO NONVIOLENCE
FROM PATRIARCHY TO PARTNERSHIPS
OF SOLIDARITY AND SUSTAINABILITY

Patriarchal Mindset

Exponential Growth ("more, more, more")

MIMETIC DESIRE LEADS TO MIMETIC VIOLENCE
IN THE PURSUIT OF WEALTH ACCUMULATION
POWER & DOMINATION
WORLDLY HONORS

Solidarity
Ethos

Sustainability Enabling

MIMETIC DESIRE FOR NONVIOLENCE

LEADS TO GENDER EQUITY
WEB OF PARTNERSHIPS
TRUTH, FREEDOM, CARE

Sustainable Development

Human Person Integration

MIMETIC DESIRE FOR A SIMPLE LIFE

FOCUSED ON HUMAN DIGNITY AND HUMAN GROWTH IN BODY, MIND, SPIRIT

Sustainability
Ethos

Human Habitat Enhancement

MIMETIC DESIRE FOR ECOHEALTH

LEADS TO GLOBAL STEWARDSHIP
HUMAN HABITAT LEGACY
SUBSIDIARITY NETS

FROM SUSTAINABILITY TO SUSTAINABLE NONVIOLENCE AND SUSTAINABLE HUMAN DEVELOPMENT

6. Human, gender and environmental security and peace (HUGE) to overcome social inequality, dual vulnerability and catastrophic outcomes

6.1 Widening and deepening the security concept: Human security

- Human, Gender and Environmental Security & Peace (HUGE) analyzes a wide gender concept (vulnerable) including vulnerable groups with a human-centered focus on environmental security and peace challenges. (Oswald, 2001, 2004, 2008).
- HUGE scrutinizes 'human security' where equity, equality, development, conflict resolution, solidarity and social organization are key variables.
- HUGE examines gender security and the impacts of disasters on vulnerable groups and regions.
- HUGE searches the fulfillment of human rights, gender equity and social equality among the most vulnerable people.

HUGE Security & Peace

Determination Which security?	Reference object: Security of whom?	Value at risk: Security of what?	Source(s) of threat: Security from whom or what?
National security	The State	Territ. integrity	State,substate actors
Human security	Individual, humankind	Survival of humankind people	Nature, state, globalization
Environmental sec.	Ecosystems, rural and urban systems	Sustainability	Humankind, Nature
Gender security	Gender relations, indigenous people, minorities	Equity, identity, social relations, solidarity, identity, tolerance	Patriarchy, totalitarian institutions (élites, governments, religious fundamentalism, dominant cultures), intolerance, intra-family violence

6.3 Social inequality (Oxfam 2016, based on Credit Swiss data available 2000-2014).

6.4 Dual vulnerability

6.5 Catastrophic outcomes: 60 years of disasters worldwide: 1950-2011 (EMDAT 2013)

Asia's share: 2002-2011

Source: CRED, 2013

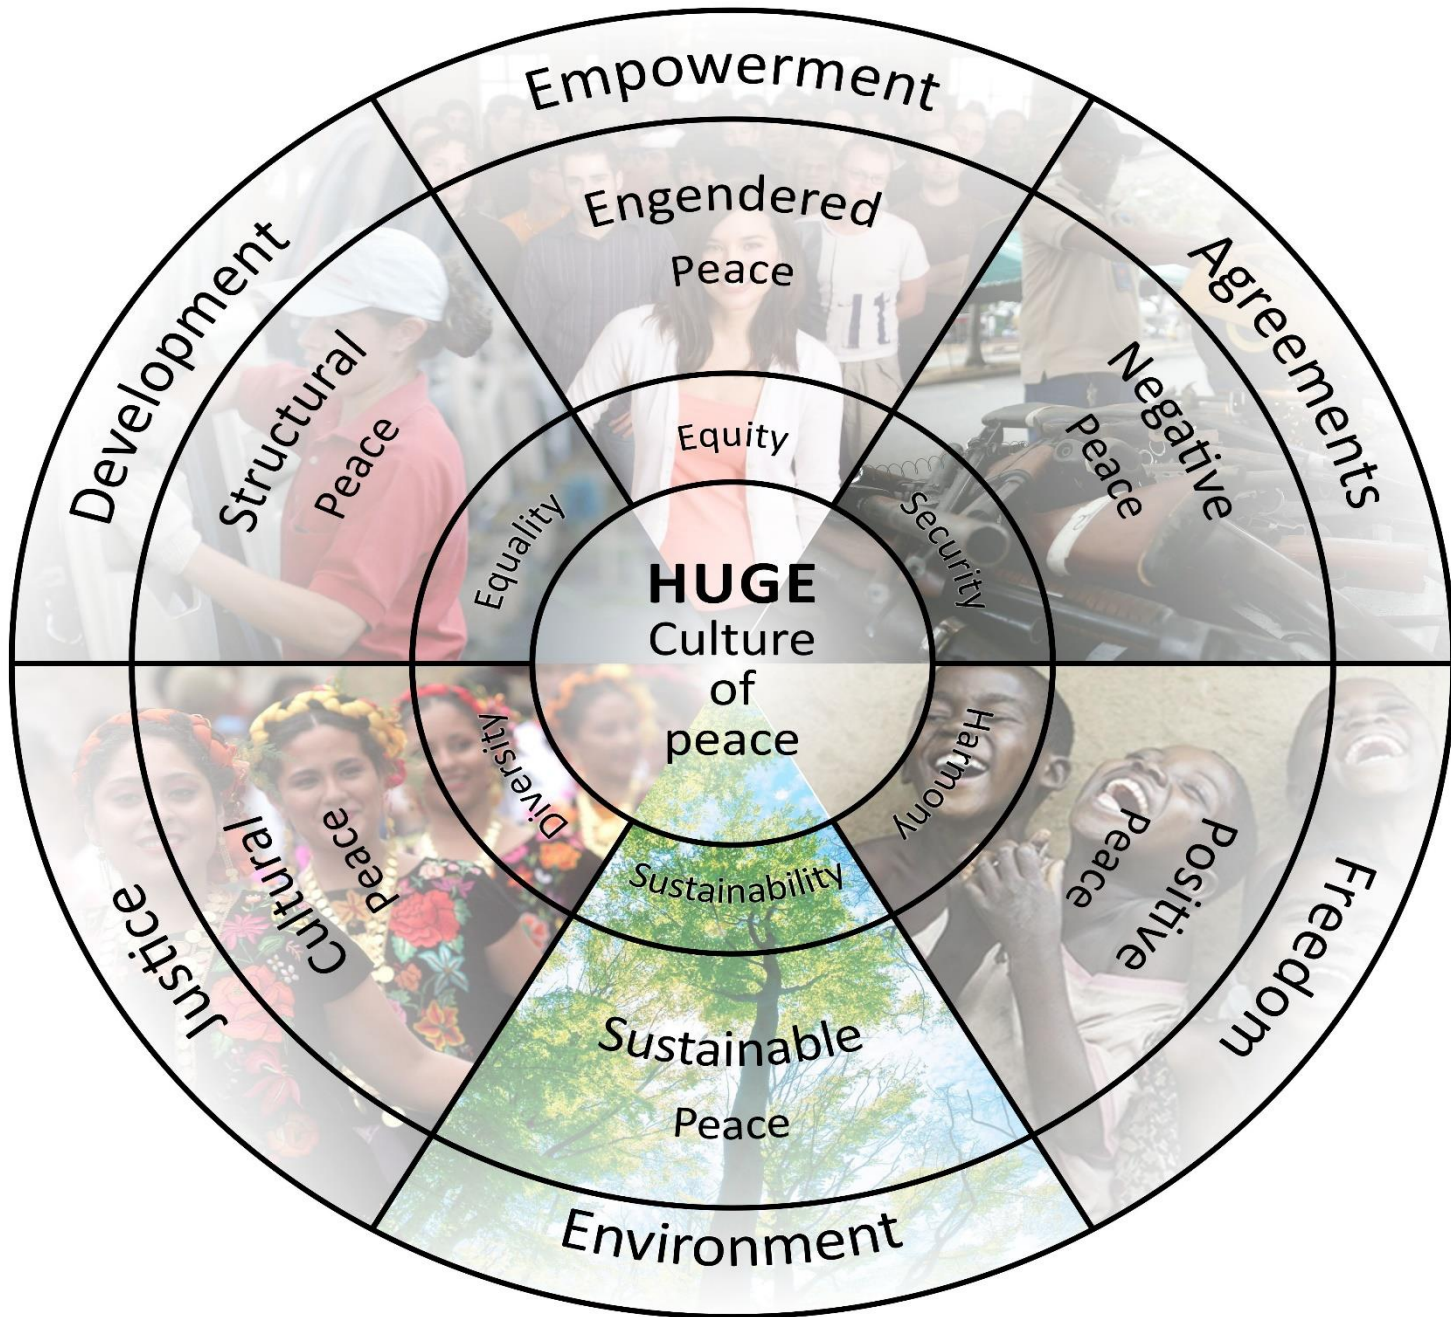

— Africa — Americas — Asia — Europe — Oceania

Climate stress, conflicts and human security

7. Conclusions

- A sustainable-engendered peace paradigm includes a holistic approach that will allow us to understand that life on earth and among humans is interrelated and interdependent.
- More just and more equal power structures may enable civil society to restructure global and local societal arenas and to educate and train actors to promote the societal values of love, genuine caring for others, fairly sharing all that is available to the group; and empowerment, helping group members to achieve fulfilment, cooperation and maturity—making together for mutual fulfilment.
- Feminism is profoundly transformational, for it calls for fundamental changes in personal values and human relationships as well as in structures and systems (Reardon 1980: 14).

Thank you for your attention

www.afes-press.de/html/download\_Oswald.html